Manager Commentary

Market Overview

During the second quarter, the S&P 500 Index rose 4.28% while the Russell 2000 Value Index fell 3.64%. International equity markets also decreased with the MSCI EAFE returning -0.20%.

Equity markets were mixed as fixed income markets continued reversing expectations for rate cuts, and the leading inflation indicators pointed to a reduction in the disinflationary forces and the potential for modestly higher inflation in late 2024 to early 2025. Global industrial activity continued to modestly improve, which should strengthen future employment conditions and offset modest weakness in consumer spending. Despite the higher interest rates, we continue to expect the economic cycle and liquidity conditions to be supportive of risk assets through the November election.

Post the November 2024 election, the investment outlook should become less certain. As we exit 2024, there is uncertainty as to the sustained level of corporate tax rates, continued pressure from raising and unsustainable deficits, and the risks associated with refinancing corporate debt in the higher interest rate environment. Despite the near-term improvement in global industrial activity, our longest leading indicators for the U.S. economy are pointing to the potential for a growth slowdown to occur in the first half of 2025. As we move through the back half of 2024, additional leading indicators will either confirm or dispel a potential 2025 economic downturn, which will allow us to adjust the portfolio ahead of any shift in economic fundamentals.

Portfolio Positioning

As a result of buys and sells and market action, the portfolio is overweight Industrials, Materials, Information Technology, and Consumer Staples while underweight Financials, Real Estate, Energy, Utilities, Communication Services, Health Care, and Consumer Discretionary.

Contributors to Performance

During the quarter, the portfolio experienced negative absolute and positive relative performance. Positive relative performance came Health Care, Information Technology, Consumer Staples and Materials while offset by underperformance in Financials, Industrials, Consumer Discretionary, Energy, Utilities, Communication Services, and Real Estate.
